ARE NOT SEEKING SPECIAL FAVORS

Georgia Farm Bureau Asks Only For Equity Of Governmental Benefits

Macon, March 21.—Contrary to the opinion of some groups, farmers of Georgia are not seeking special privileges in their efforts to make permanent legislation supporting basic farm commodities at 90 percent of parity, stated H. L. Wingate, president of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation, in discussing matters he will present to congressional committees in Washington during the next few weeks.

The GFBF executive is scheduled to appear before the Agricultural Committee of the house within the next several days in the interest of amending the Aiken long-range farm bill. He will also testify before other committees during the 81st session of the congress.

"Farmers have fought for more than twenty years for parity in prices," Mr. Wingate emphasized, "which is only a fair relationship between the prices they receive for their commodities and the prices they pay for the items used in the production of their crops." That is all farm people have ever asked for, and all that they ask for today, he added.

"If farmers are forced to accept provisions of the Aiken bill and industrial wages continue at the present peak," the Farm Bureau president pointed out, "it will inevitably lead to economic chaos. Farmers wish to carry their part of maintaining a high national income, but this objective cannot become a reality if farm commodities are supported at prices ranging from 60 to 90 percent of parity beginning in 1950."

The position of the Georgia Farm Bureau in seeking amendments to the Aiken bill is supported by the entire Georgia delegation in the congress, and by other congressmen and senators in the Southern States. Many congressional leaders from the Midwest and other sections are supporting the 90 percent parity advocates, Mr. Wingate said, today.

"Some people in this nation have expressed concern over the possibility of surpluses under a 90 percent support program," he continued, "that would deal with this is to prevent abnormal surpluses by means of acreage allotments and marketing quotas."

"I contend," Mr. Wingate went on, "that we must support farm prices at 90 percent of parity when production is adjusted. That program will secure the supply of products we need. It will maintain strong farm purchasing power to support a prosperous national economy."
